STIPULATIONS

The parties hereto stipulate and agree that venue is properly laid in this District; that the United States District Court for the District of New Mexico has jurisdiction of the parties and the subject matter.

The parties are willing to further stipulate to the following facts:

The allegations admitted by Defendants in their Answer to Plaintiff's Complaint for the Recovery of Damages Caused by the Deprivation of Civil Rights.

Plaintiff and Corizon Defendants are willing to further stipulate to the following facts:

- All Corizon medical records relating to care/treatment provided to Plaintiff Reali (identified by bates-label COR-Real000001 – COR-Real000290) are authentic and accurate copies that do not require a custodian of records to authenticate.
- Between May 31, 2017 and July 3, 2017, defendants Veronica Salazar, David Miller, and Roslyn Walden (Strohm) were acting within the scope of their employment with Corizon Health, Inc.

Plaintiff and County Defendants are willing to further stipulate to the following facts:

- All jail files are authentic and accurate copies that do not require a custodian of records to authenticate.
- Between May 31 and July 3, 2017 Defendants Board of County Commissioners for the County of Doña Ana, Kevin Silva, and Chad Hill were acting under the color of State Law.

- Between May 31 and July 3, 2017 Defendants Board of County Commissioners for the County of Doña Ana, Kevin Silva, and Chad Hill were acting under the scope of their employment.

The parties further stipulate and agree that the law governing this case is:

42 U.S.C. §§ 1983 and 1988; NMSA 1978, §§ 41-4-1, et seq.; and NMSA 1978, §§ 41-5-1, et seq.

PLAINTIFF'S CONTENTIONS:

Plaintiff Antonio Realí was an inmate in the custody and care of the Doña Ana County Detention Center (hereinafter “DACDC”) from May 31, 2017 to July 3, 2017. Antonio was first booked into the Madera County jail and advised medical staff there that he suffered from a heart condition. He told medical staff he had been prescribed nitroglycerin to treat his heart condition and needed a pill to be on his person at all times in the event he began suffering chest pain. Medical staff ordered Nitroglycerin for Antonio and allowed him to keep one pill on his person at all times. Antonio was extradited and transferred to the DACDC on May 31, 2017. Antonio was sent to DACDC with information about his medical condition from the medical staff at the Madera County jail, including a form indicating that Antonio suffered chest pain and providing a list of medications he had been prescribed prior to his transfer.

When he arrived at the jail, Corizon medical staff Steven Gomez obtained a medical history from Antonio. Antonio told Mr. Gomez he suffered from several serious medical and mental health issues, including a history of heart attacks, one occurring within 6 months of him being booked, and that he needed his prescription of Nitroglycerin available to him in the event he began experiencing chest pain. Mr. Gomez told Antonio he would not be given Nitroglycerin.

On June 6, 2017, Antonio began experiencing chest pain. Antonio was taken to medical and was seen by Defendant Roslyn Strohm, a certified nurse practitioner. Antonio informed Defendant Strohm that he had a history of heart disease and experienced chest pain that sometimes would become so intense he would vomit or pass out because of the pain. Antonio was given a dose of Clonidine, a blood pressure medication, then sent back to his cell. Eleven days later, Antonio began complaining of chest pain again. Antonio was given another dose of Clonidine then sent back to his cell. Antonio did not receive any medical treatment through the remainder of June.

On July 1, 2017, Antonio again began experiencing severe chest pain and requested medical care. Defendant Chad Hill refused to call medical for Antonio until he fell onto the ground. By the time medical was finally contacted and arrived in his cell, Antonio's pain had become so intense he could no longer walk and had to be taken to medical in a wheelchair. Andrea Mook, a nurse, called Defendant Strohm and notified her that Antonio had abnormal vitals and EKG. At this point Antonio should have immediately been sent to the hospital for evaluation for unstable angina or myocardial infarction (heart attack). Later that evening, Antonio began experiencing chest pain again and Officers on duty called a "Code Mary." Antonio was still not sent to the hospital.

The following day, Antonio was seen by Defendant Strohm for his chest pain. In fact, this was the fifth time he had been to medical after experiencing chest pain since he was booked into the jail only 31 days earlier. Defendant Strohm ordered two EKGs, both of which were abnormal. An urgent transfer for evaluation at the hospital was necessary. Antonio was again sent back to his cell without further medical care.

Early the next morning on July 3, 2017, Antonio began experiencing severe chest pain again. By this time, Antonio's symptoms of a serious medical condition had become so obvious another inmate informed jail staff that Antonio was experiencing a heart attack. Defendant Silva saw Antonio collapse onto the ground and heard the other inmates' pleas to get Antonio medical care. Defendant Silva refused to contact medical for an unacceptable length of time. Eventually, Antonio was taken to medical. He was unable to walk and was dragged out of the pod by his ankles by detention officers. When he arrived in medical, he told Defendants Miller and Salazar that he was in pain and could not breathe. Antonio then began seizing. Soon after this seizure, Antonio stopped breathing and lost consciousness. Antonio then lost bladder and bowel control. Approximately two minutes after Antonio stopped breathing, medical staff finally contacted 911. At approximately 3:51 a.m., Defendant Salazar noted Antonio no longer had a pulse. Finally, thirteen (13) minutes after Antonio lost consciousness, Defendants began CPR, at 3:55 a.m. Emergency medical staff arrived at approximately 3:56 a.m. As Antonio lay unconscious on the medical table, DACDC medical staff, including Defendants Salazar and Miller, laughed, joked, and remained apparently unconcerned about Antonio.

Antonio was transferred to Memorial Medical Center for treatment and was immediately intubated when he arrived. Antonio was diagnosed as having suffered a cardiac arrest and severe sepsis or septic shock. Antonio suffered broken ribs and a cracked sternum as a result of the CPR conducted. Memorial Medical Center staff noted that Antonio had suffered multiorgan failure as a result of his heart attack, including his kidney and liver, along with anoxic encephalopathy (brain damage as a result of oxygen deprivation). While in the emergency room, Antonio suffered another cardiac arrest. Antonio remained in the hospital for nine (9) days recovering from his heart attacks.

DEFENDANT'S CONTENTIONS

County Defendants' Contentions:

Detention Officers at the Dona Ana County Detention Center (DACDC) receive first aid training which includes CPR training, training on AED defibrillators, identify obvious signs of medical distress, and basic training in wound care. DACDC staff receive first aid training refreshers biannually. For non-emergency situations, in which an inmate is conscious and speaking, officers will ask the inmate for their symptoms. If the inmate is speaking and they can walk, the officer will call a rover officer to escort the inmate to the medical unit. For non-emergency scenarios in which an inmate cannot walk, an officer will contact Corizon personnel and a rover officer. The Corizon personnel will bring a wheelchair to escort the inmate to the infirmary.

In emergency medical situations, officers will try to elicit a response from the non-conscious inmate before calling a "Code Mary" on their radio. Emergencies include instances in which an inmate is unconscious or faces obvious serious medical distress. When in doubt, officers are trained to call a Code Mary even if the inmate seems to be faking their symptoms.

A Code Mary requires Corizon medical personnel and all available DACDC officers' immediate assistance. Corizon personnel usually arrive within a minute. Corizon personnel will bring a wheelchair or a crash cart to tend to the inmate then move them to the medical unit. A unit supervisor and one or two officers will accompany the inmate with Corizon staff to the medical unit. In all situations, once Corizon is contacted, they assume responsibility over decision-making for the inmate's medical treatment and advise when DACDC must contact emergency medical services. If an inmate must be transported to the hospital for more intensive care, the rover sergeant will call a Code 55 to master control who contacts emergency services.

July 1–3, 2017 Incident Events

On July 1, 2017, at about 10:40 pm, Plaintiff approached the intercom in the Gulf pod to speak with Officer Chad Hill who supervised the pod from inside the control room. Per DACDC policy, Hill could not leave the control pod while on shift. Through the intercom, Plaintiff told Hill that he was having chest pain and laid on the floor. Hill immediately called the infirmary for assistance. The infirmary, however, did not respond prompting Hill to call out for medical emergency assistance via a Code Mary.

Subsequent to the Code Mary call Officer Enrique Perez, Sergeant Alfonso Cortez, and Corizon staff arrive to attend to Plaintiff while Hill listened through the intercom speaker. Corizon Nurse Veronica Salazar responded to Gulf Pod to treat Plaintiff, but Plaintiff refused to let anyone touch him. Eventually, Corizon staff convinced Plaintiff to get into a wheelchair for transport to the medical unit. Plaintiff was later released by Corizon staff and returned to his pod.

At the time of the incident, Silva was on break in another room, was unaware of Plaintiff's medical emergency, and was uninvolved with Plaintiff on this day.

On July 3, 2017, at 3:40 am, another detainee "Rocha" approached Detention Officer Kevin Silva at the control room inside the Gulf pod. Rocha knocked on the window and stated that Plaintiff was having "an attack." Silva immediately called out a Code Mary over the radio. Gulf Pod supervisor, Sergeant Alfonso Cortez responded to Plaintiff who was in the G2 section of the pod when he arrived. As soon as Cortez opened the door, Plaintiff ran out toward medical with his hand on his chest, and Cortez followed. Corizon nurse Veronica Salazar met them on the way to the medical unit. Because Silva could not leave his post, he remained at Gulf control.

Both Sergeant Cortez and Detention Officer Tiara Gamboa escorted Plaintiff with Nurse Salazar to the infirmary. Just outside the infirmary, Corizon Nurse David Miller met Plaintiff and escorted him in a wheelchair into the infirmary. At the infirmary, Plaintiff complained that he could not breathe, yet refused to disclose the nature of his pain. Also, Plaintiff did not want to sit down and had trouble sitting still which hampering the medical staff in taking his vitals. Plaintiff eventually agreed to sit on the exam room table. Plaintiff then stopped breathing, turned blue, began foaming at the mouth, and leaned over before Cortez caught him and laid him on the table. Corizon staff immediately administered CPR.

Salazar asked Gamboa to call 911, and Gamboa went to master control to call 911 and describe information to be relayed to EMS. The fire department arrived 10 minutes after the call went out, and EMS showed up five minutes later. During this time, Corizon staff were administering CPR. After several rounds of CPR and use of the defibrillator, the defibrillator picked up a pulse on Plaintiff, and he was taken to the hospital.

At no time during the described events did Christopher Barela have any interaction with the Plaintiff.

The County Defendants deny all civil rights and tort claims alleged in Plaintiff's Complaint in Counts I, III, and IV. The County Defendants state that the actions of the officers did not amount to a violation of Plaintiff's clearly established 14th Amendment Rights. Further Defendant's deny that the Detention Center was negligently operated. Finally, the County Defendants assert that Dona Ana County Detention Center policies, practices, and procedures were adequate and were not a motivating factor in any violation of Plaintiff's Constitutional rights. Simply the County Defendants acted reasonably and in conformance with applicable federal and state law.

Corizon Defendants' Contentions:

On or about May 31, 2017, Plaintiff had an intake performed during his incarceration at the Detention Center. At the time, Plaintiff did not report to the nurse that he was taking any heart medications for a heart condition. Plaintiff did report that he had a prior history of seizures, with the most recent seizure occurring within the prior six months. The medical intake interview also noted that Plaintiff reported having post-traumatic stress disorder as of May of 2017. Plaintiff was placed in general population, and no emergent or urgent medical needs were noted with respect to Plaintiff's intake examination.

On or about June 17, 2017, Plaintiff was seen in the medical unit for a complaint of chest pain. Despite the complaint, Plaintiff was able to communicate on his own behalf—he reported that he was upset because the phones were broken and that he was unable to make an outside phone call. During his evaluation, Plaintiff also reported that his chest pain had resolved. Roslyn Strohm, CNP, was advised of Plaintiff’s complaint; and an order for Clonidine was given, in addition to blood pressure checks to monitor Plaintiff’s blood pressure.

On the same date, a Refusal of Clinical Services form was completed which noted that Plaintiff refused his medications. The Refusal of Clinical Services form indicates that the risks that were explained to Plaintiff as a result of his refusal included an increased risk of seizures.

On or about June 19, 2017, Plaintiff was again seen in the medical unit after a complaint of “heart problems”; although he denied chest pain or shortness of breath. Instead, Plaintiff reported that he believed that his blood pressure was high. His blood pressure was taken and reported to him. Upon receiving the results, Plaintiff reported to the medical provider: “Oh, that’s not bad. Can I go?” As a result, Plaintiff was allowed to return to his cell as no emergent condition was noted that required emergent medical care.

On or about June 21, 2017, Plaintiff was seen in the medical unit for an assessment of his vital signs. Plaintiff did not report any concerns or complaints. A history and physical was also completed on or about June 21, 2017. During the history and physical, Plaintiff reported that he had a prior heart attack within the prior six months, but he also reported that he was not receiving Warfarin, Coumadin, or Jantoven, medications typically used for certain heart related conditions. Plaintiff did report that he had been receiving medications for a history of seizures. Plaintiff also reported that he had a history of treatment for a mental health disorder. The history and physical noted that Plaintiff did not appear to be in any acute distress. Vital signs were taken; and nothing was noted to indicate that the vital signs suggested a need for emergency treatment.

On or about June 28, 2017, a Refusal of Clinical Services form was completed which showed that Plaintiff refused his morning medication dose. The Refusal of Clinical Services form indicates that the potential risks that were explained to Plaintiff included an increased risk of seizure.

On or about July 1, 2017 at 9:46 a.m., Plaintiff was seen in the medical unit because of a complaint of chest pain. However, it was noted that Plaintiff was able to enter the medical unit on his own and without assistance. Upon examination, an EKG was performed and read. Plaintiff was able to report that his pain was gone as of 9:52 a.m. On July 1, 2017, at approximately 9:54 a.m., another EKG was performed after Plaintiff received a dose of Clonidine. The EKG was performed on July 1, 2017, at 10:46 a.m.

At approximately 10:41 p.m. on July 1, 2017, a “Code Mary” was called for purposes of providing treatment to Plaintiff. Medical staff arrived at the Plaintiff’s cell and noted that Plaintiff was supine, lying on the floor, and groaning that no one should touch him. Plaintiff was reportedly angry at the Detention Center pod officer, and he claimed that he should have gone to the medical unit earlier. Although Plaintiff complained of chest pain, he refused to let any of the medical staff touch him for purposes of assessment or treatment. Within two to three minutes, Plaintiff was able to move to a wheelchair, and he was transported to the medical unit for evaluation. Once in the medical unit, Plaintiff reported that the pain had started to subside. Vital signs were taken; and another EKG was performed, which noted nonspecific lateral ST changes. Plaintiff reported that the pain had subsided, but he also claimed that he felt the pain in his lungs. A medication order was completed for Plaintiff to receive Clonidine immediately, and Lisinopril each morning. A follow up appointment was scheduled for Plaintiff to be seen in the medical unit.

On July 2, 2017, at approximately 10:48 a.m., Plaintiff was evaluated by Roslyn Strohm, CNP. Although Plaintiff reported pain, upon examination, he then reported that his pain had resolved and that he was “ok”. Plaintiff reported that he had never been formally diagnosed with a myocardial infarction, but he had self-diagnosed from prior episodes in which he believed that he was having a heart attack. Plaintiff also reported that if he could get to the medical unit, he knew that the pain would go away. Plaintiff also reported that his chest pain arose because of anger that he had toward his cellmates. During his evaluation, Plaintiff reported that he did not have any pain, and it was noted that he asymptomatic. The assessment was that Plaintiff had anxiety.

On July 2, 2017, at approximately 8:58 p.m., Plaintiff’s vital signs were taken, and those vital signs were noted to be within parameters. Plaintiff received medication, and he did not voice any complaints or concerns.

On July 3, 2017, at approximately 3:38 a.m., a possible “Code Mary” was called for purposes of providing treatment to Plaintiff. When the medical staff arrived, a Detention Center officer reported that Plaintiff was walking to the medical unit on his own. Plaintiff was met with a wheelchair, although he was walking independently. Plaintiff reported chest pain, but he was able to move from the wheelchair to an exam table without assistance. Plaintiff complained of difficulty breathing, but it was noted that Plaintiff was hyperventilating. Medical staff instructed Plaintiff to try to slow his breathing. It was then noted that Plaintiff lost consciousness and exhibited seizure like activity. An oxygen mask was applied, and Detention Center officers were instructed to call for an ambulance. Plaintiff received CPR, a dose of Ativan, and it was determined that he should be sent to the emergency room. EMTs arrived and continued CPR, and after an AED was applied and used, it was noted that Plaintiff was breathing independently. Plaintiff was transported to the Memorial Medical Center emergency room.

Plaintiff received treatment at Memorial Medical Center. As of July 3, 2017, a physician at Memorial Medical Center noted that Plaintiff had a questionable history of coronary artery disease. A preliminary diagnosis noted that Plaintiff had cardiac arrest, and epilepsy with recurrent seizures. It was believed that Plaintiff had a cardiac arrest, but a cardiac catheterization on Plaintiff's heart showed "clean coronaries". No blockage in the Plaintiff's heart or arteries was noted. It was also noted that Plaintiff had a history of drug use which made it more likely that he could have a coronary vasospasm. According to the Memorial Medical Center records, Plaintiff left that facility against medical advice on or about July 12, 2017.

The Corizon Defendants deny all civil rights and tort claims alleged in Plaintiff's Complaint. The Corizon Defendants state that the actions of its medical providers did not violate Plaintiff's constitutional rights. The Corizon Defendants deny that Plaintiff's disagreement with the extent and scope of the medical care/treatment provided to Plaintiff constitutes deliberate indifference for purposes of Plaintiff's civil rights claim. The Corizon Defendants assert that Plaintiff may not use a deliberate indifference claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 to assert a medical malpractice claim that is premised on a disagreement with the extent of the medical received by Plaintiff. The Corizon Defendants also assert qualified immunity with respect to Plaintiff's constitutional civil rights claim under 42 U.S.C. §1983.

Additionally, the Corizon Defendants deny that their actions constitute medical negligence/medical malpractice. The Corizon Defendants assert that their actions complied with the appropriate standard of care in light of Plaintiff's complaints; and that they did not cause Plaintiff's alleged injuries or complaints. Instead, when Plaintiff reported complaints of chest pain, it was repeatedly noted that Plaintiff would also report that the pain would go away or otherwise resolve.
